

RED TROOPS CAPTURE CZECH BORDER TOWN

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

BRITISH PRIME MINISTER Churchill's expression of disappointment in the progress of the Italian campaign, and his refusal to debate the subject in the house of commons, rather invites public discussion of a politico-military situation which has been regarded as belonging to the hush-hush variety.

"Perhaps," said Mr. Churchill in answer to a pressing question, "there may not be sufficient progress of operations for any statement to be made by the government. I certainly have not concealed my disappointment that progress has not been quicker."

The premier's blunt declaration of disappointment may help clear the air. He isn't the only one disappointed. What then are the facts about the Italian show?

This column has stated previously that the operations in their present stage are subsidiary to the main assault on the continent proper. It was essential at the outset that the Allies conquer the lower part of the Italian peninsula. It was vital that we possess the great port of Naples and the 13 airfields of Poggia from which the Allied bombers can rove over the Balkans and into Hitler's eastern domains.

All that was necessary. However, the subsequent offensive which has had Rome as its objective would seem to have been more for its moral effect than for military reasons, although there obviously would be military advantages in possessing the Eternal City. The point is that we don't have to take it.

Progress in the winter campaign has been slow for several reasons. The Germans have been holding mountain positions which are so strong that they could have withstood the attack of far greater forces than have been sent against them. The Allied position has been made more difficult by the winter weather and awful mud which have fought on the side of the defenders.

Probably the real key to Allied difficulties lies in the fact that the vast preparations for the invasion of western Europe have prevented the high command from devoting more men and equipment to the Italian campaign. Apparently, somebody underestimated the difficulties of an offensive up the peninsula to Rome.

AND WHO CAN SAY how much the operations have missed the skill and driving power of Britain's General Montgomery and America's Blood and Guts Patton—two of the greatest field leaders the war has

MAY CALL 4-Fs INTO SERVICE

House Military Committee, Planning Move, to Hear Patterson

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson told the house military committee today the time had arrived for 3,500,000 4-Fs between the ages of 18 and 37 to be assigned to essential industry or to be inducted into the Army in labor battalions.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Thousands of the nation's 3,000,000 4-Fs—draft age men rejected for military service because of disabilities—may be measured for uniforms soon to release younger men for active duty.

This became apparent today as the house military committee called for the views of Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson on relaxing physical requirements that now prevent the induction of 4-Fs. Patterson—whose department was represented yesterday by Paul V. McNutt, war manpower chairman, as not favoring induction of 4-Fs—recently made a survey of the situation, Chairman Costello (D-Calif.) disclosed, and may be ready to agree to use of rejected men for non-general service.

"Some method must be worked out to use these men," Costello said. "Thousands of them are younger men whose disabilities, while sufficient to prevent their acceptance for combat duty, are not grave enough to prevent them from taking an essential war job."

Costello said testimony given the committee in recent days has influenced many of his colleagues to believe the time has arrived to "put

JUDGE ORDERS COLLETT MUST DIE JULY 26

Convicted McCoy Family Slayer Probably Will Enter Pen Friday

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, March 29.—James W. Collett, 60-year-old Clinton county farmer, today was sentenced to die in Ohio penitentiary's electric chair July 26 for the triple McCoy murders last Thanksgiving eve.

Collett heard the sentence pronounced by Common Pleas Judge Harry M. Rankin without show of emotion.

Asked if he had anything to say, Collett replied in a choked voice: "I have nothing, only I'm not guilty as all I can say."

Defense attorneys flanked Collett to steady him in event he faltered during sentencing, but he remained steadfast. His wife and son were not present.

Collett's counsel said they planned to appeal his March 10 conviction of first degree murder in the fatal shooting of Elmer McCoy, 59; his wife, Forrest, 64, and their daughter, Mildred, 22.

Judge Rankin pronounced only one sentence, which covered all three murder counts. Collett was the first Ohioan tried on three such charges simultaneously.

Courtroom Is Filled

Collett was examined in Fayette county jail at 8:30 a. m. by a physician who said he was able to appear in court for sentencing.

Two sheriff's deputies assisted him up the long flight of stairs to the courtroom and as the judge entered Collett was among the first to stand. He was wearing the high plastic collar he uses frequently as the result of a neck injury suffered several years ago in a fall.

After being sentenced, Collett sat down quickly and moped his flushed face vigorously with a handkerchief.

The small courtroom was filled and several persons stood in the corridors.

Collett was returned to his cell and at the request of defense counsel, the court directed that he should not be taken to the penitentiary in Columbus until Friday.

After the sentencing Collett handed newsmen a statement penciled on a sheet of yellow paper in which he complained that he should have received a new trial and that he was mistreated before signing a confession that he killed McCoy.

PUTS FARMER DRAFT TO LOCAL BOARDS

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Yielding to demands from agricultural state senators, Maj. Gen. Louis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, agreed today to leave local draft boards the responsibility for deferment of farm workers.

Emerging from a conference with Hershey and Mary Jones, War for administrator, Chairman Russell (D-Ga.) of a senate agricultural committee announced Hershey had agreed to scrap the unit system which long had been the basis for farm deferments.

Russell and Senator Tydings (D-Md.) said the decision, which Hershey promised to put into operation immediately, should have the effect of stemming "military inroads upon farms which imperil war food production."

Instead of the unit system, under which farm worker deferments are based on the extent of production of livestock or commodities in which the employee is engaged, the so-called Tydings amendment, passed by congress two years ago, will be the new yardstick, Russell and Tydings reported.

Under it, local draft boards may defer workers if they are "regularly engaged" in the production of essential farm commodities and they can not be replaced on the farms where they are employed.

"We also are going to consider new legislation under which a farmer rejected for military service because of physical handicaps can not leave his farm to go to work in a war plant without the permission of his draft board," Russell announced.

WLW PANEL STUDIES LOCAL WAGE CASE

HEADS OF DIE SHOPS DENY THEY VIOLATED FEDERAL REGULATIONS

CLEVELAND, March 29.—A Regional War Labor board panel of three members today studied testimony taken at a hearing involving two Salem companies which the board contended violated federal wage stabilization regulations.

The companies are the Schnell Tool & Die Co. and the United Tool & Die Co.

J. M. Braun, WLW enforcement attorney, asserted at the joint hearing yesterday the concerns sought to circumvent board-approved wage ceilings in the Salem area through formation of partnerships.

He argued each company invited skilled workmen to become partners by paying only token sums into the concern.

Braun said Victor Zerbe of United invested $6,000 into the business but each of his five partners invested only $100. Similarly, Braun added, Michael Schnell placed about $7,500 in his company, against investments ranging up to $500 on the part of "four or five" partners.

"The WLW contends the partnerships actually were smoke screens," said Braun.

Both Zerbe and Schnell submitted partnership agreements in evidence to support the contention the respective partnerships were in good faith.

Braun said that whereas the board had approved a wage ceiling of $148 per hour for tool and die makers employed by an another Salem company, United and Schnell paid in excess of $2 under the partnership plan. The attorney asserted the two cited companies lured expert workers from other plants under the partnership arrangement "and upset labor conditions in that area."

Schnell, in a statement here today, denied that he had violated any government regulations. "Our records show that our partnership contract is legal and that all our employees were sent by or obtained through the United States Employment Service, he said. "We have a statement of availability for each of our employees."

TAKE KOLOMEA IN NEW DRIVE ALONG RIVER

Other Red Forces Drive On Odessa From Fall-on Nikolaev

(By Associated Press) LONDON, March 29.—Russian troops have captured Kolomea on the Lwow-Czernowitz railway in an 11-mile advance southeast toward Czechoslovakia, Premier-Marshal Stalin announced tonight in an order of the day. Kolomea is 30 miles northeast of the Czechoslovakian border.

Kolomea, in old Poland on the north bank of the Prut river, fell to a column of the First Ukrainian army stabbing into the Carpathian foothills.

The town fell in a "bold maneuver by tank formations and infantry," Stalin said, describing it as an "important stronghold in the German defenses at the foothills of the Carpathians."

Push Toward Odessa

Meanwhile to the southeast, other Red army forces were driving across the south Russian steppes from fallen Nikolaev in a push upon the great Black sea port of Odessa.

The Russians were advancing on Odessa along a curving 175-mile front. Farther west in Bessarabia, a Soviet communiqué said, units of Marshal Ivan S. Konev's Second Ukrainian army were within eight miles of the Odessa-Tiraspol-Iasi railroad, last principal escape artery from the port.

Spearsheads of Malinovsky's forces which captured Nikolaev at the mouth of the Bug already were reported across the Bug estuary, driving along the coastal roads that lead to Odessa, 75 miles to the west.

Other columns were plunging south from bridgeheads 60 to 80 miles upstream, where the Russians said, Domanevka and 40 other towns and villages fell to Soviet arms.

Berlin asserted Konev's army, stretched along the east bank of the Prut river boundary line of old Rumania, had crossed that stream to assault the strategic rail junction city of Iasi, but neither the Russian communiqué nor front dispatches confirmed this report of the first Soviet invasion of Axis territory.

Car Stalls On Tracks As Train Approaches

Motorists on the Lisbon rd. yesterday afternoon were alarmed at the sight of a car stopped on the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at the Lincoln ave. crossing.

An assembly who stopped to investigate heard a train thunder past on another track before they found the automobile was empty. While they attempted to push the machine off the tracks, Mrs. Ray Abrams, driver of the car, returned from a nearby home where she had gone to get help.

Mrs. Abrams and two children were enroute to Lisbon in her father's automobile but had slowed at the crossing. She explained that the gears on the vehicle stuck and she was unable to move it. The car was finally pulled off the tracks.

ON TO BERLIN

The Red army racing west of the Prut across the plains of Moldavia into Rumania furnishes the answer to the question of Russia's policy on fighting beyond its pre-war boundaries.

"For the Red army there are no boundaries," proclaims Red Star, Russian military newspaper. "Her boundaries are victory, Berlin and a strait jacket for the mad German Valkyrie."

Probable extent of the Russian military penetration of Europe is as treacherous a problem in guesswork as the probable date of the invasion of Europe from England. It is certain, however, that penetration will not proceed long at the present breath-taking rate. The terrain presently will favor the Germans as decidedly as it favors them where the Allied drive has been stalled in Italy. The Russian army has shown incredible ability to overcome disadvantages, but it must yield to geography.

There is, nevertheless, a stronger probability that Russians may enter Berlin first than there is that British and United States troops will be first, for the obvious reason that the Red army now has the advantage of momentum. Even if invasion from England started today, the tremendous difficulty of getting a land force in motion against defenses which soon will have been four years in preparation would bar the development of momentum for a matter of months while bridgeheads were built up. "On to Berlin" is more than an emotional phrase for Russians. It is the statement of an objective.

DEFINING EXECUTIVE AUTHORITY

Supreme court decisions upholding price control and rent control touch on, but do not deal directly with, the eventual necessity of making a constitutional definition of executive authority in wartime.

Every war president has been accused of going beyond his proper authority, yet the court rules sensibly when it says that to follow the procedures of peacetime in war emergencies often would be to ignore the necessity of prompt action. Inevitably, whenever a chief executive shades the decision on wartime authority in his favor, he invites his political opposition to accuse him of intent to ignore his legislature, even though the legislature may recognize the impossibility of full participation under the circumstances of emergency.

The definition of executive authority in peacetime is reasonably clear; at least there usually is adequate time to clear up most points. In wartime, however, many decisions must be made and rationalized later; it is virtually impossible, of course, to reject them later because then the deed has been done. And it is hardly satisfactory to leave all responsibility to the courts. There is no good reason why the rationalization should not be prepared in advance of war emergencies by a constitutional amendment defining executive power—an amendment describing how far a president may go in the use of authority during an emergency and describing, also, how far congress itself should go in delegating authority for any purpose.

MORE RATIONAL RATIONING

If rationing lasts long enough, there is a good chance it may become rational in most of its ordinary aspects. OPA's decision to quit drawing deadlines on food coupons is another step in that direction. Chester Bowles may prove that his job as administrator is not necessarily a spot for transients.

While the decision apparently was forced by the tendency to hoard the new plastic tokens, to get purchasing flexibility which expiration dates on coupons prevented, eliminating expiration dates will have the further benefit of stopping rush buying just before expiration dates. Much of this buying was not rational; it was carried on merely to use the purchasing power of coupons about to expire. It encouraged hoarding and, worse, the reckless expenditure of stamps.

In the case of large families, the new method, in combination with the lower point value of many commodities, even may make possible a net saving in foodstuffs as fresh vegetables become more readily available. There should be less inclination than there was last summer to buy the limit regardless of need as a hedge against future shortages.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, March 30

A RATHER dubious and obscure state of affairs is indicated in this day's forecast. There are signs of duplicity, underhand and tricky activities, to be met and vanquished by shrewd, alert and sagacious tactics. This treacherous condition may be felt in private, domestic or social affiliations, with suspicion and subterfuge. In business, and new projects of importance, there is an explosive tendency which may produce dire results. Shun strife, enmity, and impulsive moves; keep emotional balance under firm control. Under high stimuli there may be some definite and constructive work.

A Birthday Forecast

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year calling for extremely cautious and sagacious conduct lest all sorts of illicit, intriguing and perplexing problems arise. All intrigues, stratagems and undercover tactics should be rigidly side-stepped, as danger, menace and regrets may affect personal life. Refrain from impetuous, rash and emotional outbursts, diverting heightened impulses to practical and energetic work, possibly in new projects or programs.

A child born on this day may have sound creative talents, with energy and practicality, but may be weaned from serious efforts into dangerous paths of pleasure or indulgence.

The Nation On Wheels

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Vacation time is just around the corner. Two national conventions are only a few months away. In the offing are the national and local political campaigns with their thousands of sectional and community rallies.

If ever our national transportation system faced a crisis which might result in complete breakdown, it is the one coming up.

Troop movements are greater than ever and probably will increase in coming months. Furloughs, generally given to the boys about to leave for the battle fronts, have been mounting. War freight shipments were never so great and will climb for some time.

The brutal fact remains that civilians who have no business traveling just won't stay home. The recent spectacle of thousands of winter vacationists stranded in Florida, some even sleeping on beaches, may have been just the beginning of a cancer unless the marginal civilians who travel unnecessarily stay home. That's not my statement. It comes from the Office of Defense Transportation and it's not exaggeration.

The actual facts are that the railroads, without any new or increased equipment, are carrying more than three times the passengers they did in 1941. Their available rolling stock is really less than before the war. The black market in railroad reservations is being investigated in a dozen sections of the country and several "rings" already have been broken. It is the civilians who deal in the black markets, although some desperate persons have to resort to it to travel on legitimate business.

Bus travel is no better, if not worse. With only slightly more equipment than before Pearl Harbor, bus operators are carrying about two-and-a-half times the load.

The airplane travel situation is a little different, but no less crowded. The planes in service have been sharply reduced. Some of the big lines have only ten or 12 serviceable planes, yet are carrying more passengers than before the war. Plane travel is the only one so far where priorities are operative. This has helped but it hasn't cured the situation.

There isn't the slightest chance that the rubber, gasoline or automobile replacement situation will be improved this year. It's even possible that the not very successful ban on pleasure driving, deplored by officials and civilians alike, will have to be restored again.

Ship travel is, of course, out for the duration.

American forces in the Pacific are growing constantly in strength, but just how great an armada it will take to storm the gates of Tokyo is uncertain. The Yanks are anxious to do the job, but they want to move forward only when they are ready to make the drive a success.—George Jones, United Press correspondent back from the southwest Pacific.

If the invasion of Europe will consist of private operations of the type of the Italian campaign, Germany will be able to defend itself by a limited number of divisions and will continue to keep her main forces on the Soviet-German front.—Russian Maj. Gen. M. Galaktionoff.

The promised land is not now so far off. If necessary we have got to hazard all and give our lives that others may enjoy it.—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery.

Victory Gardeners Urged To Increase Production of Food

At a recent meeting of the Victory Garden committee in Salem, letters were read from the state and county committees stressing the increased importance of gardening this year due to the large decrease in available canned vegetables and fruits for civilians next year.

Last year Ohio's Victory Garden program produced 387,789 tons of food. This year an increase of 10 per cent is requested.

The local committee composed of H. C. Hurlburt, chairman, Dana Fioding, George Glogau, J. E. Frazar, Mrs. Wilson, Eldon Groves, and Mrs. Robert Wentz, feels that anyone who wants to garden should have no trouble in securing a plot is requested to notify the committee.

The matter of seeds, fertilizers and equipment presents a slight problem as some of these are limited in supply. The supply of seeds with the exception of a few varieties such as New Zealand spinach, some varieties of beets and onions, and onion sets, should be adequate.

The limitations on fertilizers have been withdrawn. Sulphate of ammonia is not available but ammonium nitrate and nitrate of soda will do the same job. There should be sufficient fertilizer available.

The situation in regard to equipment is more critical. Cultivators, hoes, rakes, wheelbarrows, dusters, sprayers, etc., are available but the supplies are small and replacements uncertain. There will be adequate amounts of dusts and spray materials.

The following bulletins will be available at seed dealers as soon as the committee receives them: "Garden for Victory," "Victory Garden Soils," "Growing Potatoes for Home Use," "10 Tips for Fighting Plant Diseases," "Home Garden Hotbeds," "Controlling Insects," "Irrigating, Cultivating and Mulching."

Radio Programs

Arturo Toscanini will conclude his sixth season with NBC symphony in two more broadcasts, winding up on Easter. Oscar Levant, of Information Please, is piano soloist next Sunday and Jascha Heifetz violin soloist on Easter. Levant will play Gershwin's "Concerto in F."

Reducing Diets Guarantee Results

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I PAUSE to recommend to the overweights among my readers the Lenten diets I have been publishing. If you began in mid-Lent and followed them faithfully, and if you were as much as 20 to 30 per cent overweight you will be 10 to 15 pounds thinner by Easter.

The diets have been very carefully designed by an expert to conform to war time rationing and points. One advantage of the diets is that you will save ration stamps on them. They are arranged so that leftovers are made up from the principal meat or food of the day before. If you under eat on this your family may over eat because there will be more family ration points.

They are also arranged so that the vitamin and mineral content is up to par. The protein is adequate though low. The caloric value of a day's food intake in this diet is quite low and practically guarantees weight loss. Almost any adult, no matter how small, requires 1500 calories daily; a diet restricted to 1000 calories will make him lose weight. The Lenten diets here presented contain 450 to 500 calories daily.

Calories Necessary

This follows the formula of Newburgh, of Ann Arbor, who finds that obese persons can subsist on 450 calories a day and are in nitrogen balance if the diet contains 60 grams of protein a day. If they diet and keep on working they need more carbohydrate than Newburgh gives his hospital patients, which is 32 grams, and I am assuming my Lenten dieters will continue activity so the carbohydrate content of my Lenten diets is above 32 grams. This maintains the acid base balance.

The cause of overweight is still more or less a matter of debate. The fatty, the grossly overweight person, protests he does not eat any more than his thin or normal-weighted brother. But if he is right and there is something different in his bodily mechanism, the experts and researchers haven't found it. One might think the processes and fires of life went on at a lower level, but the basal metabolism, which is the index of these fires, is the same for the obese person as for the normal. Or if there is any difference the obese person is likely to produce a little more heat.

Eating Causes Overweight

The glands—those ductless glands—so often incriminated are very seldom the cause. Losing weight the thyroid or pituitary way is very unsatisfactory.

There is as a background for any case of obesity, probably a steady long continued slight increase of food intake and a slight decrease of activity. "The stout man may be somewhat different from others," says Alvarez, of the Mayo Clinic, "in that when he is tired he wants plenty of food; the thin type of person when tired often can't eat much."

Reducing is indicated for much more than mere convenience in getting around easier, or vanity or having the clothes fit. The death rate among overweights is proportionately higher at different ages almost exact at the proportion of overweight. In other words at 40, people 40 percent overweight have a 40 per cent higher death rate; at 50, those 50 per cent overweight have a 50 per cent higher death rate, and so on.

Ideal Weight Ages 25-45

5 ft. 3 in.	127	133
5 ft. 6 in.	138	144
5 ft. 9 in.	150	156

Note: 20 percent over means you should diet.

THE RED CARNATION by BURTON STEVENSON

CHAPTER NINETEEN

"Wait a minute," Duffy broke in. "I always like to begin at the beginning. And first, suppose we all sit down. That's better. Now, my boy, tell me first about your father."

His father, Terry said, had been professor of American history for many years. Leda had graduated from college the year before. He would graduate the coming June.

"How does it come you're at home now?" Duffy asked.

"It's Easter vacation. I've only been home since Sunday."

"How old are you?"

"I will be twenty in June."

The family had been a happy one, but two years previously a ghastly tragedy had struck it. Their mother had been burned to death. Their father had never recovered from the shock. He had tried to go on with his work for a time and then had been forced to ask the college for an indefinite leave of absence.

His friends thought it just a nervous breakdown from which he would recover, but it was deeper than that. His local physician had sent him to New York to consult a specialist, and on the latter's advice he had removed to Mount Vernon the year before in order to have regular treatments. He had grown much better.

"Why, when I saw him Sunday," said the boy, "he seemed exactly like his old self. He was sure that he would be able to start work again in the fall, and was very happy about it. Monday morning, when he went for a treatment, he remarked that he was sure he wouldn't need many more. Leda can tell you that."

"Yes," agreed the girl, "he was taking an interest in things again. He seemed perfectly well. I was to meet him at three o'clock, and we were going to an art exhibit. I waited nearly an hour, but he didn't come."

Her voice trailed away. "And then you came on home?" Detective Duffy asked.

She nodded mutely.

"I didn't see him when he came home," young Terry went on. "The fact is," he added, flushing a little, "I hadn't done so well at the Easter exams and had some work to make up. There's a little shack in the back yard that I use as a sort of workshop when I'm at home, and I took my books out there right after lunch, started a fire and settled down with them. I didn't know what time it was, but suddenly I heard somebody screaming. When I looked out the window, there was Lucy running down the path toward the shack."

"Who is Lucy?" Duffy inquired.

"She's the cook—the colored woman you saw."

"Go on."

"I ran out—she screamed something about father being shot. I ran into the house, into this room. Father had fallen forward across his desk there. Blood was all over everything. He had upset a vase of flowers. It was all over them."

"What sort of flowers?" Duffy asked.

"Carnations. He raised them in his greenhouse. There are some on his desk now."

Duffy glanced at the flowers on the desk and then his eyes met Tony's. "It looks like we're getting to the bottom of this case at last," he observed. "Was there a gun on the desk?"

"Yes, in his hand."

"Whose gun was it?"

"It was his—he'd had it for years."

"Go ahead. What did you do then?"

"I didn't do anything. I just stood and stared."

"Was there a note on the desk?" Tony asked.

"Yes, but I didn't see it then."

"Well, what happened?" asked Duffy.

"The first I knew, Lucy came in with the doctor who lives next door. He looked at father and called the police. They came and took charge of things. They found the note. It just said he had killed himself because he was so ill—and that wasn't so at all. It was because."

His voice had risen to a shrill cry. "Wait a minute, son," Duffy broke in. "Take it easy. I can guess what happened next. The police and the coroner looked things over and then took your father's body away. What time did your sister get home?"

"I don't know. It was after that."

"It was nearly five o'clock," Miss Terry said. "I waited for father at the Grand Central galleries for nearly an hour. Then I decided that something had happened to detain him, went downstairs and caught the four-fifteen, which reaches Mount Vernon at four-forty."

"Okay," Detective Duffy nodded. "What next?" he added to the boy.

"The coroner sent his car for me and when I got to his office he said that I could arrange with some undertaker for the funeral. I told him I didn't know any undertaker, so he arranged it for me. While he was telephoning, I saw father's revolver on his desk and put it in my pocket."

"What did you do that for?" Duffy asked sharply.

"It was his. I wanted it."

"To kill someone with it?"

"No, I didn't want to kill anybody—not then."

"Later on, eh? Well, let's hear about it."

"I came back home," the boy continued. "Lucy said Leda was lying down and I went to my room to rest a little myself. I wasn't feeling any too good. And when I started to lie down, I found a letter from father pinned to the pillow. When I read it, I understood."

His voice was breaking again. "Where is the letter?" the detective asked.

Mutely the boy drew a letter from his pocket and handed it to the detective.

It was beginning to grow dark in the room, so Duffy took the letter and walked over to a window. Tony read it over his shoulder:

My dear son and daughter: The note that I will leave on my desk is for the police and the public. This is for you.

As you know, your mother's death was a terrible shock to me, and I thought for a time that I should never get over it. Recently, however, I have been much better. I thought I would soon be well. But something happened today which has set me back again and made it impossible for me to keep on living.

As a teacher I have never made much money—just about enough to live on. Your mother had an inheritance of $30,000, and this we agreed to keep intact for you.

The money had been placed in securities of various kinds, and when I came to New York I thought it might perhaps be possible to invest the money in such a way that the principal would be safe, and at the same time yield a larger income. I was advised by a person whom I trusted to consult a broker named John McKibben. He was confident that he could increase the income by at least a third without risk. So I turned the securities over to him, impressing upon him the necessity of keeping the principal intact.

Today I learned that the entire investment had been wiped out. I was shown a balance sheet, but it meant nothing to me. I think it has really been stolen, but that makes no difference. McKibben could probably be punished, but the money would still be gone. I do not feel that I can go on. I am too ill and too discouraged to start over again. It is cowardly, I know, but I have no courage left. My life insurance will take the place of the money I have lost.

To you, Franklin, I would add one word. Your nature is impulsive. Try to control it, or it may lead you into serious difficulties. You will always be wise to ask your sister's advice. Leda has a far cooler head than you have.

Good-bye, my dear children, and forgive me for what seems like deserting you. I should only be a drag on you and a misery to myself. I have always loved you.

Your father, Lawrence Terry.

Duffy folded the letter and put it in his pocket, asking: "What did you do after you had read the letter?"

"There was only one thing for me to do," the boy answered hoarsely. "What was that?"

"Kill the man who killed my father."

Duffy folded the letter and put "How did you go about it?"

Lucy had told him that Leda was still asleep, so Franklin had scribbled a line, "I am going to see this man McKibben," placed it with his father's letter in an envelope, and gave it to Lucy to give to his sister when she awakened. Then he had gone for a moment into the study. He had looked down at the desk where his father had lain. He saw the blood-stained flowers. One of them was soaked with blood, which had dried upon it, turning it to deep red. Franklin picked it up, broke off the stem, and slipped the flower into the buttonhole of his coat.

Frozen Foods May Be Removed From Ration List Soon

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, March 29.—The government is expected to remove all frozen fruits and vegetables from the ration list soon and to continue present ration values on meats during April.

The action on frozen commodities is designed to clear crowded cold storage facilities for this year's production.

Point values on many beef cuts and most pork items were reduced this month to relieve freezer space filled to near capacity by record slaughtering of January and February.

Because meat stocks have not been materially reduced, the March values will be continued through April, authoritative sources at the War Food administration said.

The present 16-point value for butter is expected to be continued for another month despite the fact that production, following the normal seasonal pattern, is increasing.

Meat rationing entered its second year today with civilian supplies still sufficient to maintain the nation's health standards but with little possibility the program can be suspended this year.

It was on March 29, 1943, that American housewives began giving up ration points for meats, butter, shortening, cheese and other products in the Office of Price Administration's red stamp plan.

OPA Administrator Chester Bowles commented:

"Odd as it may seem, total civilian consumption of meat during the first year of rationing was at one of the highest levels in the country's history. The nation's farmers produced during 1943 almost 23 billion pounds of meat, a record amount."

Of the total output, Bowles reported, about six billion pounds helped feed American military personnel and fighting men of the Allies. Some 17 billion pounds found its way to civilian tables.

Officer and Nurse Married Overseas

(By Associated Press) NAPLES, March 29.—Honeymooning on a battle field under enemy fire, a United States army nurse and a Signal corps lieutenant were secluded briefly today, after their wedding in a hospital tent Monday night.

This first beachhead wedding culminated a 18-month romance that began at Camp Pickett, Va., in August, 1942, when Lt. Thomas C. Rose, Lancaster, O., met Nurse Second Lieut. Genevieve Clarke, Allison Park, Pa.

Rose went overseas first and the couple met again last August in Sicily where they applied for the necessary papers.

Then the Italian campaign began and they waited until permission finally came through to Ando.

The ceremony was performed at a flower-banked altar in a sanctified tent lighted by 10 candles in a pair of home-made candleholders stained dark red with iodine.

Capt. Carl J. Simon, Canton, O., pumped out a wedding march on a little organ. Tech Sgt. Eugene Wentz, Pittsburgh, Pa., sang "I Love You Truly" because nobody there knew the words to "O Promise Me."

The bride, like all the others, wore uniform. The ceremony was witnessed by 300 nurses, officers and G. I.'s sitting on the edges of beds and on boxes. The best man was Maj. L. C. Grimes of Portland, Ore.

After the wedding the bride cut a 25-pound wedding cake with a trench knife.

Divorce Agriculture From Politics, Says Bricker In Speech

(By Associated Press) WICHITA, Kan., March 29.—Agriculture and industry must be considered as a whole if farmers' price and parity problems are to be solved, Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio said last night.

"We should remove agricultural legislation from the field of social reform, take it out of politics and operate it for the benefit of agriculture," the candidate for the Republican presidential nomination told a party rally.

"We must recognize that the farmer's price and parity problems are traceable to numerous causes and they cannot be cured with agriculture alone. Their solution will not come until agriculture and industry are considered as a whole."

"Parity must work both ways," Bricker declared. Government must share the responsibility for having created some of the conditions which have worked to the disadvantage of agriculture and it must share the responsibility of creating an atmosphere of trust, cooperation and mutual understanding among farmers, industrialists, wage earners and consumers."

The presidential aspirant told a press conference upon his arrival in Wichita he favored an association of governments in which the United States "must deal as a sovereign nation with the other sovereign nations."

Bricker said, however, he opposed strongly any centralized "super-government which would direct our army and our navy, or would require us to give up any of our sovereignty."

Marine Corp. Ted Huffnagle described the invasion of the Marshall Islands and the capture of Engebi, Parry and Eniwetok atolls in a recent letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Huffnagle of Lectionia. The Lectionia youth saw action in the same sectors as Pfc. Don Rice of Salem.

He wrote: "Engebi was taken in six hours and five minutes, a record for our regiment of which we are very proud.... And don't let anyone tell you the Japs aren't good soldiers, because they are—but the Marines are better! The guy who said 'War is hell' knew what he was talking about and there never was a truer saying than 'There are no atheists in foxholes.'"

Corp. Huffnagle, a brother of Mrs. Harry Windram of N. Broadway, enlisted in the Marines March 9, 1942 and has been overseas 15 months. Twelve months of that time he was stationed in the South Pacific and recently has taken part in the island advances of the Marine Corps. His address is: Corp. E. P. Do you have poor digestion? ☐ YES ☐ NO
Do you feel headachy after eating? ☐ YES ☐ NO
Do you get sour or upset easily? ☐ YES ☐ NO
Do you feel tired—listless? ☐ YES ☐ NO

Now everyone knows that to get the good out of the food you eat—you must digest it properly. But what most people don't know is that Nature must produce about two pints of the digestive juice—liver bile—each day to help digest your food. If Nature fails—your food may remain undigested—lie sour and heavy in your digestive tract.

Thus, it is simple to see that one way to aid digestion is to increase the flow of liver bile. Now, Carter's Little Liver Pills start to increase this flow quickly for thousands—often in as little as thirty minutes. When bile flow increases, your digestion may improve. And, soon you're on the road to feeling better—which is what you're after.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's Little Liver Pills are directed. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today—at any drugstore—only 25c. You will be glad you did.

A CHICKEN KNOWS that an egg won't hatch unless you sit on it the proper length of time.

As with eggs, so with nest eggs.

The best nest egg in the world today is the War Bond. It's an incomparably safe investment. It pays $4 for every $3 you put up.

But...

In order to get that nice fat interest, you have to sit on a Bond for the proper length of time. 10 years to be exact.

You can get your money before that, any time after 60 days. But you won't get the full benefit. You lose the interest. You take your money out of the fight. You kill off savings that might be a blessing in days when money doesn't flow as freely as it does today.

Amateur Scrappers Tangle For Eight State A.A.U. Titles

FIGHTERS TRADE PUNCHES TONIGHT IN CAPITAL CITY

Three of 12-Round Battles Last Night End In Knockouts

COLUMBUS, March 29.—Amateur fighters tangle here tonight for eight state A. A. U. boxing championships.

Leading the parade into the semifinals and finals are P. Frank Tunstall of nearby Lockbourne army air base, favorite to win in the 118-pound title-holder.

Tunstall, runner-up in the recent national Chicago gloves tournament, Chicago, last night won an easy decision over his initial opponent in the tourney—Shirley Keeling of Cincinnati. Keeling was 1943 the 1943 state A. A. U. champion in the 112-pound class.

Clark found it a little more difficult to outpunch Henry Jackson of Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster. Clark's decisive third-round margin gave him the decision.

Knockouts Occur

Three of the 12 three-round battles on last night's card ended in knockouts—all in the first stanza. William Bush of B. I. S. stopped Dorman Knapp of Marion in the 112-pound class; Oliver Cobbins of Cincinnati kaymed Melvin Camper of Lima in the 126-pound set; and John Wesley of Cincinnati flattened Andy Anderson of Marion in the 118-pound division.

FAUSETT IN MAJORS AFTER NINE YEARS

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 29.—The first time 36-year-old Buck Fausett had a chance for the major leagues, he got in a money squabble with Connie Mack, boss of the Philadelphia A's, and he was sent back to the bushes. It has taken him nine years to climb back up the ladder.

Fausett now has all the willingness and ambition of a young rookie as he makes a bid for third base chores for the Cincinnati Reds.

Last year, as player-manager for Little Rock, Ark., of the Southern association, he had his best season in a long term in the minors which began in 1932 with Galveston, of the Texas circuit and took him to Indianapolis and Minneapolis of the American association and finally to Little Rock in 1942.

As manager of Little Rock, Fausett led the club to runner-up honors. As a player, he notched a .362 average and collected 205 hits to lead the league.

"Old Connie Mack taught me a lesson I'll never forget, and that's not to be bullheaded," draws Fausett. "I reported to the A's in the spring of 1935 from Galveston along with Wally Moses, now of the White Sox. Two days before spring camp broke up I got stubborn and squabble with Mack over money. Then—bingo—I'm back at Galveston."

A foggy field and cold caused cancellation of the Reds' scheduled exhibition game with the Chicago Cubs at French Lick, Ind., yesterday. Today the Reds tangle with Donnie Bush's Indianapolis Indians for their first brush with competition this year.

DEATHS LAST NIGHT

TORONTO—Stephen B. Leacock, 74, Canadian economist and humorist and for many years on the staff of McGill university. He was born in Swanton, England.

CHICAGO—William H. Lochner, 27, an editor in the Chicago bureau of the Associated Press and a nephew of Louis P. Lochner, formerly chief of the Berlin Associated Press Bureau. He was born in River Forest, Ill.

VENTURA, Calif.—Zoe Kincaid Pennington, 66, writer and widow of the late British journalist, John Pennington, who for many years represented Lord Northcliffe in the Orient. She was born in Petersburg, Ontario.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Nearly 68 per cent of the 347 men who played in National Football league games in 1941 are in the armed forces and tub-thumper George Strickler, who has been trying to list the service footballers who retired before that time complains because he has only been able to get about 150 names. The league's service roster now contains 421 names and 47 per cent of the men hold commissions. Until Sept. Dutch Harrison won the Charlotte Open tournament not even the boys in his own barracks at the Greensboro, N. C., basic training center knew that he was a top-flight pro golfer. Under wartime rules, All-America Creighton Miller will be eligible for football at Notre Dame next fall (he's in law school there) but Coach Frank Leahy isn't planning to use him.

The reason why you never see George Parnassus, Juan Zurita's pilot, with one of those long seagars affected by successful flight managers goes back to his experience as a Phoenix, Ariz., restaurateur. Seeing ten-gallon hats on every masculine head, George invested $40 in a white one. As he stepped from the store, he met a feminine acquaintance and bowed with a hat-sweeping gesture that knocked a lighted cigaret out of his left hand. After chatting a moment, Parnassus smelled smoke and discovered that the cigaret had burned a hole through the peak of his new $40 headgear. Right then George tossed both the hat and the smokes into the street and vowed he'd never smoke again—he hasn't.

Birmingham, Ala., has invited Judge W. G. Braham to move his offices there from Durham, N. C., so that minor league headquarters will be in a city with a ball club. . . . Jim Walt-hall, all-around athletic star from Princeton, W. Va., is the first high school boy ever to win the Kump trophy for doing the most for amateur sport in the state. He's ticketed for West Virginia U.

Ohio High Schools To Accept Changes In Basketball Rules

COLUMBUS, March 29.—H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio high schools would "automatically accept" changes in basketball rules voted yesterday by the National basketball committee.

The rules changes include provisions for five instead of four personal fouls, unlimited substitutions and a ban on players touching the ball on its downward flight in a shot for the goal.

Townsend explained that several years ago the OHSAA "hesitated" about accepting one or two rules changes, but that since that time the state organization has accepted them automatically.

"The high schools have a good representation on that rules committee," Townsend said.

The Ohio commissioner expressed the opinion the changes "look like pretty good rules."

"The 'goal tender' rule may be pretty tough on the officials," he added, "but it looks like a good one."

Spring Training Camp Briefs

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, March 29.—Lou Novikoff, the "Mad Russian," apparently is up to his old trick of giving the Chicago Cubs a headache.

The slugging outfielder is among the absentees from the Bruin's spring camp at French Lick, Ind.

Warren Giles, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, is reported trying to talk the Cubs into a swap for the outfielder.

Meantime the Cubs learned that Pitcher Lon Warneke and Outfielder Charlie Gilbert had passed their pre-induction physical exams and that Slugger Jimmy Foxx will report Saturday ready to start his comeback.

The Chicago White Sox were told by Johnny Humphries, one of their best pitchers, that he has been reclassified 1-A.

Have a Coca-Cola = Kia Ora
(GOOD LUCK)

...or sealing friendships in New Zealand

Kia ora, says the New Zealander when he wants to give you his best wishes. The American soldier says it another way. Have a "Coke", says he, and in three words he has made a friend. It's a phrase that says Welcome, neighbor from Auckland to Albuquerque, from New Zealand to New Mexico. 'Round the globe, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes,—has become the high-sign between friendly-minded people. So, of course, Coca-Cola belongs in your icebox at home.

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke".

Marauder Bombers Face Busy Schedule

(By Associated Press)
A U. S. MARAUDER BASE IN BRITAIN, March 29—American B-26 Marauders, which have been raining bombs on European targets with time-table regularity of late, may be making three trips daily across the English channel this summer.

With the coming of longer daylight hours, it was pointed out here, these hard-hitting medium bombers will be able to carry out short missions to France after supper every evening.
Already the fast, twin-engined planes are making two trips daily with such regularity that double-header operations—with only time out for lunch—no longer stir much excitement among the crews.

Lt. Richard Meninger of East Liverpool, O., a Marauder pilot, declared after his last doubleheader: "The only gripe I had was that the second trip kept me from getting off early for a visit to London."

produced? These two would have been a good addition to the undoubtedly good generals already in the field.

As for the failure to take Cassino after the big blitz, this column warned readers at the time of the unprecedented bombardment not to jump to the conclusion that there had been success, because it looked as though there was a lot of hard fighting still to be done there. It was a lesson not to overestimate the efficacy of air-power.

The Anzio beachhead attack was advertised as a three-ring circus when it was only a side-show. It was intended as a diversion, to stampede the Nazis into withdrawing troops from the Cassino sector in the Allied line to the south. It didn't work—and that was that. We didn't fool the Germans. Nothing more could be made of it without extending it into a major amphibious invasion.

It can be added that the Allied positions seem to be secure, despite the lack of progress.

DEMOCRATS CHEER OKLAHOMA VOTING

Republicans Minimize Effects of Congressional Election

(By Associated Press)
MUSKOGEE, Okla., March 29—Democrats laid claim today to a nationally significant triumph in Oklahoma's special congressional election. Republicans blamed the New Deal machine for yesterday's result and minimized the effects.

The state's second district, traditionally Democratic, was made a major battle-ground. National party leaders joined the fray. Both sides said the Roosevelt administration was the issue.

With only 19 of the eight-county district's 331 precincts still unreported today, Democrat W. G. Stigler led E. O. Clark, Republican, 21,405 to 17,678 votes.

As politicians tried to appraise the result—looking toward what Oklahoma and other normally Democratic border states may do in November—these were the immediate tangible developments:

1. The victory had given the Democrats 217 seats in the house of representatives against 210 for the Republicans, 4 for minor parties, 4 vacancies.

2. The Democrats had recorded their third triumph in 11 special congressional elections since 1942—against 8 for the Republicans.

Republican leaders had contended the special congressional elections had shown a definite "trend" their way, although some said privately last week that they were not counting too heavily on winning in Oklahoma.

In Washington, Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, said today Stigler's victory "exploded completely and decisively the myth of a nation-wide Republican trend."

Said Oklahoma's Republican Senator Ed H. Moore, former Democrat who was elected on an anti-New Deal platform in 1942:

"Both the federal and state New Deal machines were in the district plugging every minute. The organization got the job done."

Sen. Moore's reference to the New Deal machine was aimed in part at a letter addressed by Sen. Ed Thomas, D-Okla., to federal employees eligible for absentee ballots in the district. The letter, in effect, urged them to turn out every possible vote or face a chance of losing their jobs should Republicans win and go on to a sweep in November.

Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey disclosed he is prepared to ask the armed services to induct into work battalions any 4-F registrants who are able to work but who are not contributing "materially and substantially" to the war effort.

President Roosevelt remarked, in response to a question at his news conference yesterday, there are other groups besides 4-Fs—high school boys and girls and even newspapermen, for example—who could help with such work as harvesting.
